Lessons learned

- How to convert DOM elements to jQuery element.

  $(e.target).

- More experience with php and ajax requests.
- To return JSON object with php we can specify the format using header( ).

Problems encountered

- We started using Bootstrap, but caused to much trouble and we had to start again the design without it.
- Problems using the same name for a php function as one of default php functions.
- Php code was a little bit confusing because variable names. We had to rename them.

Task management

We used a TODO list to assign tasks and keep track of everything.

Albert worked more with JS to make ajax request and output the info on the website.

Eloy worked more with PHP and build the necessary scripts to send information to front-end.

The two of us worked in Back-End and Front-End.
